Erasmus+

Summary

Today, many organisations successfully involve migrant youth in activities, but many young people still remain only as participants rather than active contributors in decision making processes. Youth workers often need more practical tools to overcome language, cultural, and systemic barriers and create spaces where migrant youth can influence activities, express their ideas, and take leadership roles.

Inclusion in Practice equips youth workers with practical methods to strengthen participation and empowerment. The project combines non-formal education, experiential learning, simulations, storytelling, gamification, digital tools, and peer learning to help youth workers design more inclusive activities. Participants will explore how to support migrant youth in developing communication, teamwork, critical thinking, and civic engagement skills.

The project focuses on creating methods that can be adapted and used by youth organisations across Europe.

The project will include:

- Workshops on inclusion, participation, and barriers faced by migrant youth
- Simulations and role plays focused on decision making and empowerment
- Case studies and peer learning activities
- Digital workshops using tools such as Miro and Canva
- Study visits to organisations working with displaced and migrant communities

The project aims to:

- Strengthen participants competences in supporting migrant and refugee youth participation
- Improve participants skills in communication, teamwork, and facilitation
- Promote diversity, equality, and democratic participation in youth work
- Create transferable resources and tools that can be used by organisations across Europe
